Abstract: The Fibonacci number sequence is famous for its connection to the Golden Ratio and its appearance within natural objects. There also exist Fibonacci-like sequences that share the same recursive definition without possessing its same connection to the Golden Ratio. We will explain a method for constructing such Fibonacci-like sequences, and subsequently give an example of the relationship between the Golden Ratio and the Fibonacci sequence using a sunflower.